Coaches' Perspectives

In reflecting on the 2017 season, there is one word that comes to mind over and over again. Second. Initially the word came up when I thought about our season record—we placed second in our new league (the Lakes Valley Conference), second at the regional, and we had our second-highest finish ever at the state finals (14th).

Second. This word works in other ways, too. Each minute is made up of seconds, and every one counts. Each member of our team can tell you what a difference there is between, for example, 19:59 and 20:00. More than a second, I assure you. In a way, seconds are our currency when it comes to cross country. We give them to get them. We sacrifice hours of time to win back mere seconds during a 5k race.

There is another definition of second that applies to us as well. Second also means “to support someone, to back someone up.” Our girls are lucky enough to be running in what many see as the new era of women’s running. The New York Times describes it at the “Shalane Effect,” named after Shalane Flanagan, the first woman to win the New York Marathon in 40 years. It is a phenomenon that needed a label after it was noted that all of Shalane’s training partners (11) had made it to the Olympics while training with her. The article states: “We usually see competitive women, particularly athletically excellent women, only in one of two ways: either competing to defeat one another, or all about team over self. But that’s a flawed, limiting paradigm. The Shalane Effect dismantles it: She is extraordinarily competitive, but not petty; team-oriented, but not deferential. Elevating other women is actually an act of self-interest: It’s not so lonely at the top if you bring others along.”

This reminds me of our team in more ways than one. When I ask myself what I am most proud of, it is not one athlete, or one performance, or one meet, but the way this team elevates each other without compromising individual integrity. I see my job as fostering this mindset from one year to another and making sure that the torch these girls (especially our seniors Katie, Kate, and Mackenzie) have so masterfully handled is never dropped. If I can do that, it doesn’t matter whether we finish second (or first, or third).

Accolades such as the meet finishes I mentioned before, two all-state athletes, all-region, and all-county runners, four all-county athletes, another year of academic all-state team honors tell an impressive half of the story. But the intangible aspects of the season-- the views at camp, the car rides, the conversations, the rainstorms, the long runs, the laughter-- is where the other half of the story lies. And I’ve enjoyed every second.

Go Blue!

Coach McNeil

Before I get together with the team for the first summer practice in July I wonder what changes will have occurred in our month apart. I was cautiously optimistic that the rebuilding phase of the past two years would lead to a team with a new sense of purpose - I was not disappointed. It was refreshing to see new leaders taking the team in a cohesive direction. At camp I enjoyed the maturing company of a well-seasoned group of upper-classmen as well as a serious, colorful, and committed group of underclassmen. Watching the boys run as a group and pal around with a greater sense of confidence and ease assured me that our team had found itself. They never gave me reason to question my early season judgement of their certainty and commitment. Our individual and team accomplishments this season speak for themselves through the history and statistics included in the Cross Country yearbook, however, I feel that I must point out that we are trending in a favorable direction.

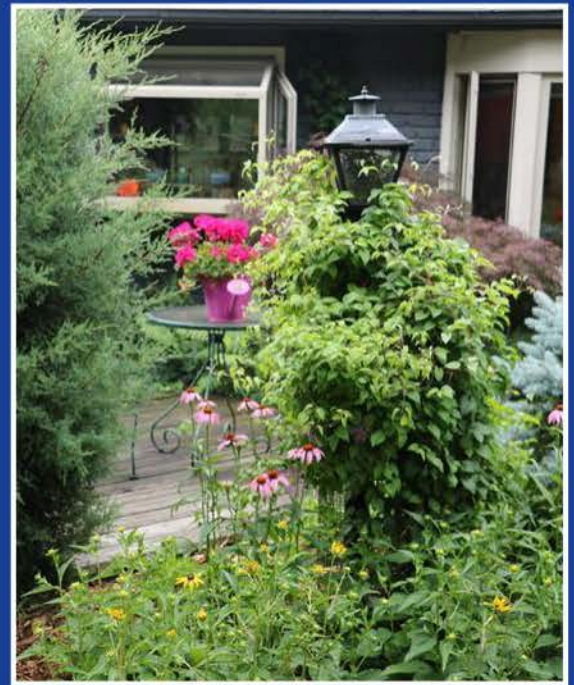

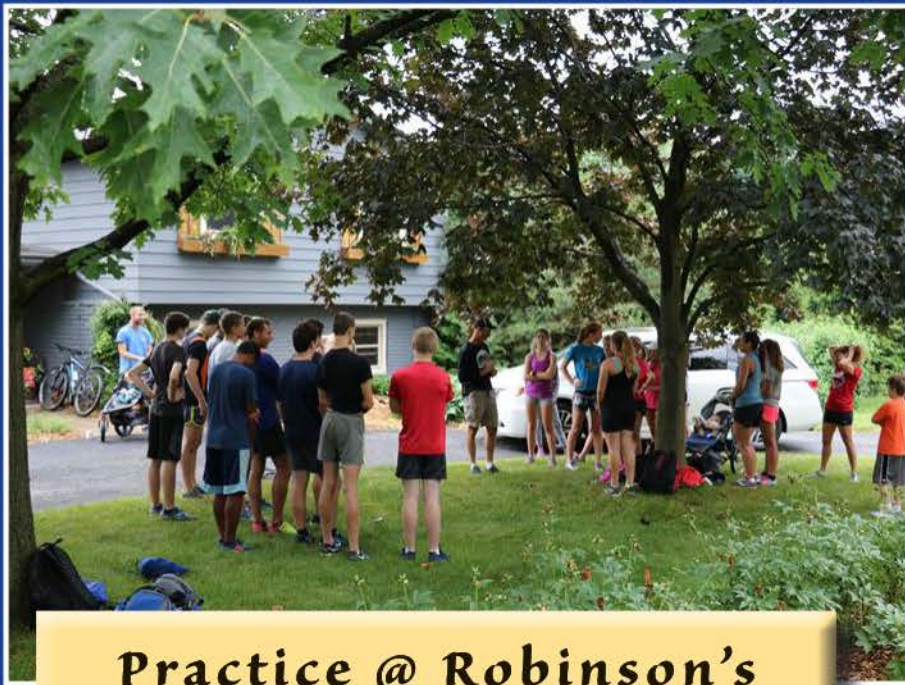

Bringing together our extended team of families for concessioneering, parking detail, course maintenance and a litany of other tasks cemented bonds that will last our lifetimes. Our kids got to see people sacrificing personal time to work together and create a positive entity, the influence of which will extend far beyond fit bodies and fast times. Trust in each other and our collective commitment to our community and our children refresh me every year I'm part of a Mott Cross Country season.

Thank you all for the contributions you made to another wonderful experience for me as your coach!

Summer Camp @ Camp Leelenau

August 18th-21st, 2017

Day 1

Summer training for Mott's cross country athletes is a focused journey to prepare themselves, their coaches, and the team for the long season of racing. Summer camp is an important part of this preparation. This year marked the fourth consecutive year Mott travelled to northern Michigan's Camp Leelanau.

The camp's secluded location near Glen Arbor, Michigan, is on a scenic, waterfront property surrounded by the Sleeping Bear Dunes National Lakeshore.

After unpacking and getting settled in, the athletes explored the camp trails as a warm-up for their first workout. There was plenty of experience with these trails since this was the 4th trip to camp for some of the seniors.

Day 1 - Workout

The first workout gave the athletes a good indication of how their summer training was progressing. It was followed by a short walk to the beach to cool off.

Day 1 ~ Cool Down

Lake Michigan's cool water and waves provided many fun and memorable moments and a quick way to cool down after training.

Glen Arbor

The nightly trip to Glen Arbor has become a reliable tradition at camp. The town has many options for dessert, shopping or just hanging out. The Cherry Republic has become a familiar gathering place and everyone knows where to meet when it's time to leave for camp.

Day 2

Morning Run

View from Lookout Point

The second day began with a yoga session on the tennis courts followed by an easy run.

The destination for this run was a 'seasonal road' a short distance from camp. The easy 'out and back' run was just what everyone needed to get ready for the afternoon workout on the trails to Lookout Point.

Day 2 - Easy Run

The morning run was followed by a little core work and another well-deserved trip to the beach before lunch.

... Cool Down

Searching for Petoskey stones on the beach and in the shallow water was a popular and relaxing activity. Some of the discoveries were very impressive!

Day 2 - Afternoon Run

The afternoon workout took the athletes on some very hilly and scenic trails. The views from Lookout Point were spectacular.

... Back to the Beach

After the workout, athletes who needed a little more mileage for the day were allowed to run back to camp. The others got to ride back in Coach Robinson's truck. Either way, the next stop was usually the beach.

The long day ended with a trip to Glen Arbor, followed by one last walk down to the beach to watch the sunset. Lots of photos were taken to capture the beautiful views shared with both new and longtime friends.

Day 3

The third day brought more of the same beautiful weather conditions - ideal for the day's planned long run. The goal for the athletes on this run: maintain their individual pace for a specified time (75 minutes for most).

Day 3 - Morning

To accomplish this goal, a new format was tried this year. Everyone started the run at staggered times and in different directions to avoid the tendency to run at another teammate's pace.

Day 3 - Long Run

It was fun to watch this run develop over time as teammates eventually met up on the trails and continued together at their goal pace. This new, long run format turned out to be very successful. Everyone made it back to the starting point and no one got lost. There was still time for the lake and lunch before the much anticipated afternoon canoe trip.

Day 3 - The Canoe Trip

There was a short delay in getting transportation to the river. Patience did not seem to be a problem after the efforts given earlier in successfully completing the morning run.

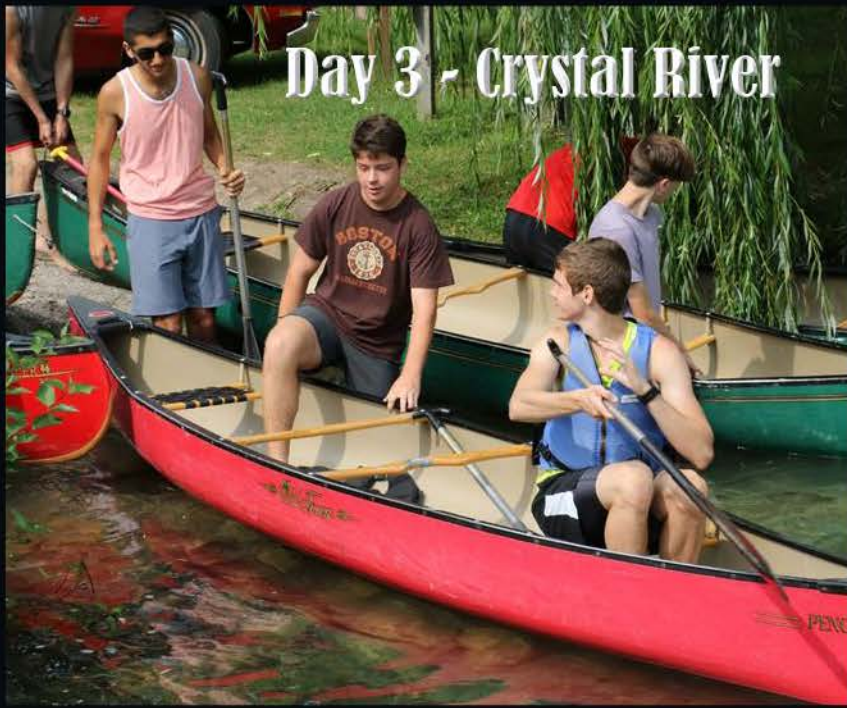

The excitement continued to build as the athletes prepared to launch their canoes. More patience was required as a canoe 'traffic jam' developed at the launch point.

Day 3 - Crystal River

The afternoon trip down the Crystal River was a big success. Since there were a few veterans on the trip with Coach McNeil and Evan to look out for everyone, the rest of us headed to Art's Tavern to get Mrs. Robinson some lunch after her 17 mile long run earlier.

Day 3 - Evening

Pyramid Point

A short drive down the road, accompanied by the long walk to Pyramid Point, provided spectacular views of Lake Michigan and the Manitou Islands. After the photo ops and a quick trip to Glen Arbor, the day ended back at camp with a birthday celebration for Hunter.

Day 4

The final day of camp greeted everyone with more of the same beautiful, sunny weather. The final item on the schedule was an interval workout followed by one extra set for the seniors as part of the traditional 'Senior Challenge'.

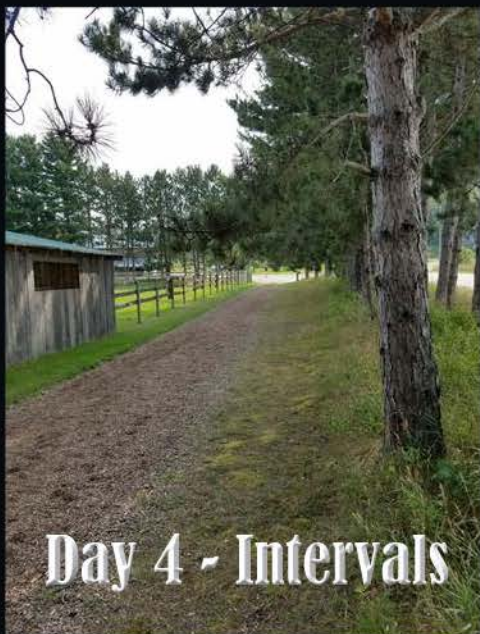

This year was a little different than previous years because Mott was joined by a few other teams for the final workout. The atmosphere and excitement at the starting line and throughout the run provided a great preview of the upcoming season.

Day 4 - Final Workout

Day 4 - Intervals

Day 4 - Hit the Beach

This year's summer camp was another great success for the athletes and coaches of Waterford Mott. Congratulations to everyone for their dedication, effort and commitment to Mott's Cross Country program. Go Mott!
